Virginia Lee's Personal Answers To Herald Readers' Questions

History repeats itself and so do styles. There are, no doubt, a number of my readers who remember the handkerchiefs with the wide lace frills, so popular about fifteen years ago.

One store has just commenced to show these in three patterns. One six-inch square of material was frilled with a dotted net border two and one-half inches in width. Another net border was plaited and a third was conventionally trimmed with several rows of lace. These were priced at 25 cents.

At several stores I saw such gayly checked, dotted and cross-barred handkerchiefs at 15 cents that I couldn't help thinking of the one-time oddity of a bandana.

Most of the new crepe-de-chine kerchiefs carry a double row of hemstitching and are priced at 30 or 35 cents. They come in a large variety of colors.

I will be glad to tell you just where these smart little finishing touches to your wardrobe can be purchased if you will send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a personal reply.

Reparation.
Dear Miss Lee: What is the proper reply to make to a boy friend when he asks to take you home, or if you will go to some place of amusement with him? I had a misunderstanding with a boy friend about a year ago. Since then we write only once in a while, and he does not act toward me as he did before. I think a great deal of this boy and would like to make up, as I realize now that I was always the cause of our quarrel. What would you suggest?—Penny.

When a boy asks to take you anywhere that you care to go with him, say "thank you." "I would like to go very much," or words to that effect. Of course, the boy will need some sort of clothes. I would suggest several white skirts, blouses and middie. The skirt of sport silk and a crepe de chine Russian blouse would be a more dainty outfit of this type. Take one or two organdies or dresses of similar nature, and an evening dress or so. You should be able to get along with two or three hats; white shoes for sport wear, dark for a suit or dark dress you may care to travel in and more dressy pumps for the lighter frocks. Of course, if you intend to ride or swim take such clothes and a sweater is always handy. If you desire more definite information, I will be glad to furnish you with same.

Explanation Needed.
Dear Miss Lee: A boy whom we all liked was introduced to me when I was with my family. One night he told me that he cared for me. I told him to wait the next day but he did not come. My mother was very

The Cheapest Food Procurable Today Is Milk

As a food, MILK is an absolute necessity in the diet of growing children, as well as supplementing the deficiencies which occur in the daily diet of adults.

Are Your Children Getting the Amount of Milk They Require?

Growing Children must have bone-making, muscle-building, mind-developing food. MILK—in a manner unlike any other food—builds up your children and preserves their health.

Milk furnished by our members is from healthy cows on nearby farms in Maryland and Virginia, and is pure and sweet. Use more of it.

TAMING MY HUSBAND

By KATHLEEN FOX.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
"Cut out the putting," Crittenden called, "and come to bed."

"I'll be up pretty soon," I replied. I was not willing to see him right then.

"Come now, or I'll come for you," he threatened. A moment later he entered the darkened living room.

"When I say come now, that's what I mean," he snarled, dragging me after him to the stairway and up. Possibly he did not know that he was hurting my wrist, that, in his anger, his grip was like that of a vise. He dragged me on into the bedroom, where he whirled me until I faced him.

He was treating me unjustly. No, once, after it had been settled that I was to keep Pegasus had I alluded to my victory over him.

"Now, listen to me," Crittenden commanded me, "if you ever bring up the subject of that horse again, I'll get rid of him if I have to shoot him. So help me, I'll do it."

Then he flung my hand violently from him. As the stinging pains shot up my arm to the shoulder, I reflected how innocent I had been and how brutally he had acted.

"Crittenden Hayes," I said solemnly, "the day will come when I shall pay you in full for what you have done to me. For, as God is my judge, I shall hurt you more than you have hurt me this night!"

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1919.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The Sun is in benefic aspect to friendly planets, according to astrology. Jupiter is mildly adverse.

The away is held to be most propitious for those who rule, whether in national or domestic affairs.

It is a lucky day for those who seek political rewards or financial favors.

While the planets are not in positions especially favorable to initiative in business or commerce, they encourage those who seek office or places where advancement is probable.

This month is to be marked by a diplomatic victory of some sort and this will offset possible blunders, foretold recently.

Uranus is in a place that threatens continued danger from explosions, but loss of life will be comparatively small, for strong protective influences are at work.

Against treachery or double-dealing on the part of a foreign power is prophesied.

Danger from the south seems to be prefigured by the stars and there may be fighting of some sort far from either the eastern or the western coast.

Much activity in regard to publishing is prognosticated for the summer months. New newspapers may be started.

The lunation of the month is most encouraging for workers of every class.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of advancement in business or professional work. The domestic circle should be safeguarded.
